Excerpt: .a fresh bath while the others were not. After all the negatives had been washed and dried they were labeled and laid aside for observation. Those that were fixed in both After fixing, negatives should always be washed from 40 to 60 minutes in running water, which is constantly passing over both sides of each negative, or in from 10 to 12 changes of water, at intervals of 5 minutes, if they are washed in a tray. Negatives should never be stored away between the leaves of a book. Book paper usually contains chemicals that will injure a negative, and ink from a printed page sometimes becomes indelibly impressed on negatives. Glass negatives can safely be stored, face to face and back to back, without any paper between them, in the box in which the plates were packed. The face of a glass-plate negative should not be placed in contact with the back of another, unless the back (glass side) of the other is perfectly clean, because, when gelatine comes in contact with finger marks it absorbs them and finger marks on a negative usually show in the print. The best way to store film negatives is to place them in an Eastman Film Negative Album, which contains 100 numbered and indexed compartments made of a special kind of translucent paper that is free from all impurities that would injure a negative. Thorough fixing, thorough washing and observance of the precautions we have mentioned...
