Excerpt: .for a protest: The foundations being gone what can the righteous do? So, for seven months, Joseph Dudley was President of the Provisional Government of New England, and during those months the birthdays of the king and queen were celebrated by the royalists in Boston, and to Episcopalians was granted the right to hold services in the east end of the Town House. The Puritan Pepys, as Sewall has well been called, duly notes these developments, telling us that on Sunday, May 30, he sang the 141 Psalm. exceedingly suited to the day. Wherein there is to be worship according to the Church of England, as tis called, in the Town House, by countenance of Authority. In August Sewall has grave doubts as to whether he can conscientiously serve in the militia under a flag in which the cross, cut out by Endicott, has been replaced; and three months later he answers his own question by resigning as captain of the South Company. A few Saturdays before this the queen s birthday had been celebrated with drums, bonfires and huzzas, thereby causing Mr. Willard to express, next day, great grief in s Prayer for the Profanation of the Sabbath last night. Then, on Sunday, December 19, while Sewall was reading to his family an exposition of Habakkuk, he heard a great gun or two, which made him think Sir Edmund Andros might be come. Such proved to be the case. The first governor sent...
