Not illustrated. 1900 Excerpt: .has done its work to help free women from the inconvenient, unhealthy dress of fifty years ago. We are largely indebted to them for the freedom of the bicycle costumes which public opinion in this country--hardly in England and France and nowhere else on the face of the globe--allows us to wear without mobbing us. And even the bicycle itself, that blessed harbinger of liberty and health to girls and women, would scarcely be tolerated now had it not been for the courage of those Bloomer women of half a century ago. It is not women alone who are helped by the changes in women s position. Every man you ever saw had a woman for his mother, and every woman had a man for her father. We are all one family, and what is good for the bee is good for the hive, says Emerson. So the woman question is a race question after all. And Miss Anthony s work is not yet done. She attended a convention in Washington last March, looking twenty years younger than her seventyeight years, it was said, in spite of the plain black dress which she always wears, and her crown of white hair. While she was there a birthday reception was given her by Mrs. McLean, in one of the most beautiful homes in Washington. It was attended by Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Philip Sheridan, and other well-known ladies who believed they were honoring themselves in doing honor to...
